

Society of Physics Students (SPS)

Outstanding Student Award

for Undergraduate Research

SPS is soliciting from its student membership proposals for physics papers to be presented at the 2012 International Conference of Physics Students (ICPS) August 4-10, 2012, in Utrecht, The Netherlands

Award Details

Winners will receive a $500 honorarium and a $500 award for their SPS Chapter, as well as expenses for transportation, room, board, and registration for the 2012 ICPS. In addition, winners are invited to give their research presentation at an SPS Research Session at a national meeting in 2012-13.

The ICPS is planned and hosted by the IAPS, an international non-governmental association run by students for students and recent graduates who are interested in physics. The IAPS provides the opportunity for physics students to have an international experience as a supplement to their university or college science education. The Society of Physics Students (SPS) is a National Committee member of IAPS representing the United States of America.

The conference language will be English. Typically, the attendees are upper level undergraduate, and first and second year graduate students. Previous conferences have been held in Romania, Denmark, Turkey, Austria, Russia, Poland and Croatia.

The privilege of contributing papers is restricted to SPS members in good standing and nonmembers whose completed membership applications and payments for the first year's dues are submitted before the deadline. The application form with proposed abstract and two letters of recommendation must be sent to the SPS Outstanding Student Award Committee, One Physics Ellipse, College Park, MD 20740, postmarked on or before March 15.

www.spsnational.org/programs/awards/student.htm

Applications must be postmarked on or before MARCH 15

